SUMMER STUDY ABROAD 1962

Each summer many educational institutions abroad provide courses of interest to students from the United States. The regular academic programs are suspended during the summer, and courses are given in the country's language, history and civilization. They are usually divided into beginning, intermediate and advanced sections to meet the varying degrees of language ability of the students. Some institutions offer special courses for teachers of foreign languages and for advanced scholars. There are also offerings in fields such as music, art, law, political science and sociology. Programs usually include visits to nearby sites of interest.

The courses listed are conducted in the language of the country unless otherwise indicated. If further details are required, students should write direct to the addresses indicated.

Information on other summer opportunities abroad, including educational tours and international service projects sponsored by U.S. educational and travel organizations may be found in the sources listed on the back page.

GENERAL INFORMATION

ADMISSION PROCEDURE: Applications should be addressed to the Director, Summer Vacation Course, unless otherwise specified.

CREDITS: Universities abroad do not use the American college credit system. However, by special arrangement, American colleges and universities may grant credit for attendance at a summer school abroad. It is important for those who wish to receive credit to make prior arrangements with their own educational institutions.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS AND COSTS: Dormitory housing is uncommon abroad and students generally live in pensions, hotels or with families. Some schools provide special living accommodations for students at the summer session, but most do not. The schools will assist students in finding quarters and will usually supply a list of suggested residences.

The cost of a summer abroad varies so much with the country of choice, length of stay, school concerned and travel while abroad that it is impossible to estimate. Tuition costs are considerably lower than in the United States and also vary with the country and school concerned. Those students planning to use veterans' benefits should submit their applications to the appropriate Veterans' Administration regional office.

SCHOLARSHIPS: Few scholarships exist for summer study. If schools have stated that they have scholarship assistance, in varying amounts for U.S. students, this is indicated at the end of the individual listing. Applications for scholarships should be sent direct to the school, unless otherwise stated.

Teachers interested in Fulbright grants for summer seminars abroad should write to the Office of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington 25, D.C. for complete information. The annual deadline date for these awards is October 15 of the preceding year.

TRANSPORTATION: Students may make arrangements with local travel agents or ticket offices of the transatlantic ship and airlines. Passage on special ships carrying large numbers of students and educators has also been reserved by the Council on Student Travel. The Council conducts special orientation programs during the voyages. Passage may be obtained on these regular transatlantic liners through the Council on Student Travel, 179 Broadway, New York 7, New York.

PASSPORTS AND VISAS: Students must obtain passports through the U.S. Department of State, which has a passport office at 630 Fifth Avenue, New York City, as well as in other cities. An application for passport may also be made through the nearest U.S. District Court. Although visas are no longer required for short stays in most countries, students should check with the consulates concerned.

VACCINATION: A smallpox vaccination certificate, not over three years old, is necessary for re-entry into the United States. Students should know the health requirements of each country they plan to visit.

SUMMER SESSIONS 1962

Asterisks (*) indicate information from 1961 listings. It is anticipated that the courses will be offered again in 1962; however, definite information had not been received in time for publication.
